Wakefield High School ran up its season high point total as they galloped past Fairfax in a rather loosely played Group 1-A Northern District basketball game at Wakefield last night, 63 - 41.

A meager crowd watched Clayton Powell put the Warriors ahead to stay with a layup in the opening seconds of the game and then watched Jerry Kahn plunk through a long jump shot with seconds left to give them two more points than they had been able to muster previously. In between there was considerable action, some excellent play at times and, at other times, some that both coaches would rather forget.

The Warriors are now the undisputed leaders of the Northern District race, an honor they may only have for a little more than twenty four hours since Washington - Lee hosts Mount Vernon tonight in a game the Little Generals expected to win.

The Warriors have been particularly tough on their last five opponents in the opening period. Edison, Mount Vernon, George Washington, Yorktown and Fairfax have been able to score only 19 points between them. That kind of defense plus the fact that the Warriors are usually ahead by 10 or 12 points at the end of the period makes it extremely rough on the opposition trying to catch up. Fairfax found themselves quickly in just such a predicament last night as Wakefield surged to a 16-4 first quarter lead. The Warriors used a man for man full court press and a zone defense early in the game but switched to man for man during the latter stages. In either case, the Rebels didn't get inside with any regular success and usually shot with one of the high jumping Warriors in front.

If the Warriors are following a pattern on defense they are also back to their early season script on offense. They closed out with 19 points which matched their fourth quarter point production in their first three games of the season.

The balanced offense that has also been their trademark was evidenced as the Warriors put four men in double figures. Harvey Crittendon led the parade with 15, followed by Bob Roop with 13, Tony Duehring with 10 and Marvin Jordan with 10. Jordan got eight of his in the third period to come back up after having been off his game a bit in the past two outings.

Clayton Powell, who also started George Washington's downfall with a jump shot from the corner, scored only five points, but only took four shots from the floor. Still he is perhaps one of the more underrated players in the Northern District. He is a fine defensive player, always tough off the boards, and a steady, heady player on offense. While he doesn't go in for the spectacular, he seldom throws the ball away, is an excellent ball handler and can hurt his opposition with a soft close in shot. He seems to be at his best when the going is rough as when he hit 12 against Falls Church as the Warriors won 59-52. He also had 11 in their close 42-40 win over Groveton.

Top scorer for the night was Elroy Worsham of the Rebels who turned in 19 points. He gets them with driving layups or drives that stop near the foul line. He is a fine, quick ball handler who doesn't need much of an opening in the defense to drive through.

Jim Lonergan, who had 22 points against Hammond Tuesday night, couldn't get shots tonight and when he did, couldn't find the range. He was held to two points and for one who has been averaging near 12 points per game his slump hurt the Rebels.

Chris Collis had only eight, which is below his usual output, but the Warrior defense just doesn't give up too many good shots and particularly when they are up against a team that has about the same height.

The 3 - 2 zone put up by the Rebels didn't seem to hamper the Warriors too much though they hit a miserable three out of 17 shots in the second period but still managed to outscore Fairfax by one point. Most of their shots were from fairly close in as they moved the ball around against the zone.

Crittendon hit the longest shot that the Warriors have made all year with one second to go before the half as he let fly from about 35 feet to send them to the dressing room with a 27 - 14 lead.

The Warriors final game of the season is at McLean next Friday night. Fairfax closes out against Madison at Woodson on the same night.

Ex-Warrior, Crackel, Paces Cavayearlings

Jeff Crackel, former Wakefield High School basketball star, is now hitting the hoop for the finest University of Virginia freshman team in memory. They have won nine straight.

Crackel is one of the more talented members on the squad and has the figures to prove it. He has hit on 38 of 81 attempts from the floor for 47 per cent, leads the team in free throw shooting with 26 of 31 for 84 per cent and is regarded as the team's premier ball handler.

The Cavayearling's biggest win so far was an 86-79 triumph over a highly regarded North Carolina freshman team. Jeff had 23 points, a season high mark, which included three straight jump shots which brought the team from behind in the second half. He also contributed 7 rebounds and 5 assists.

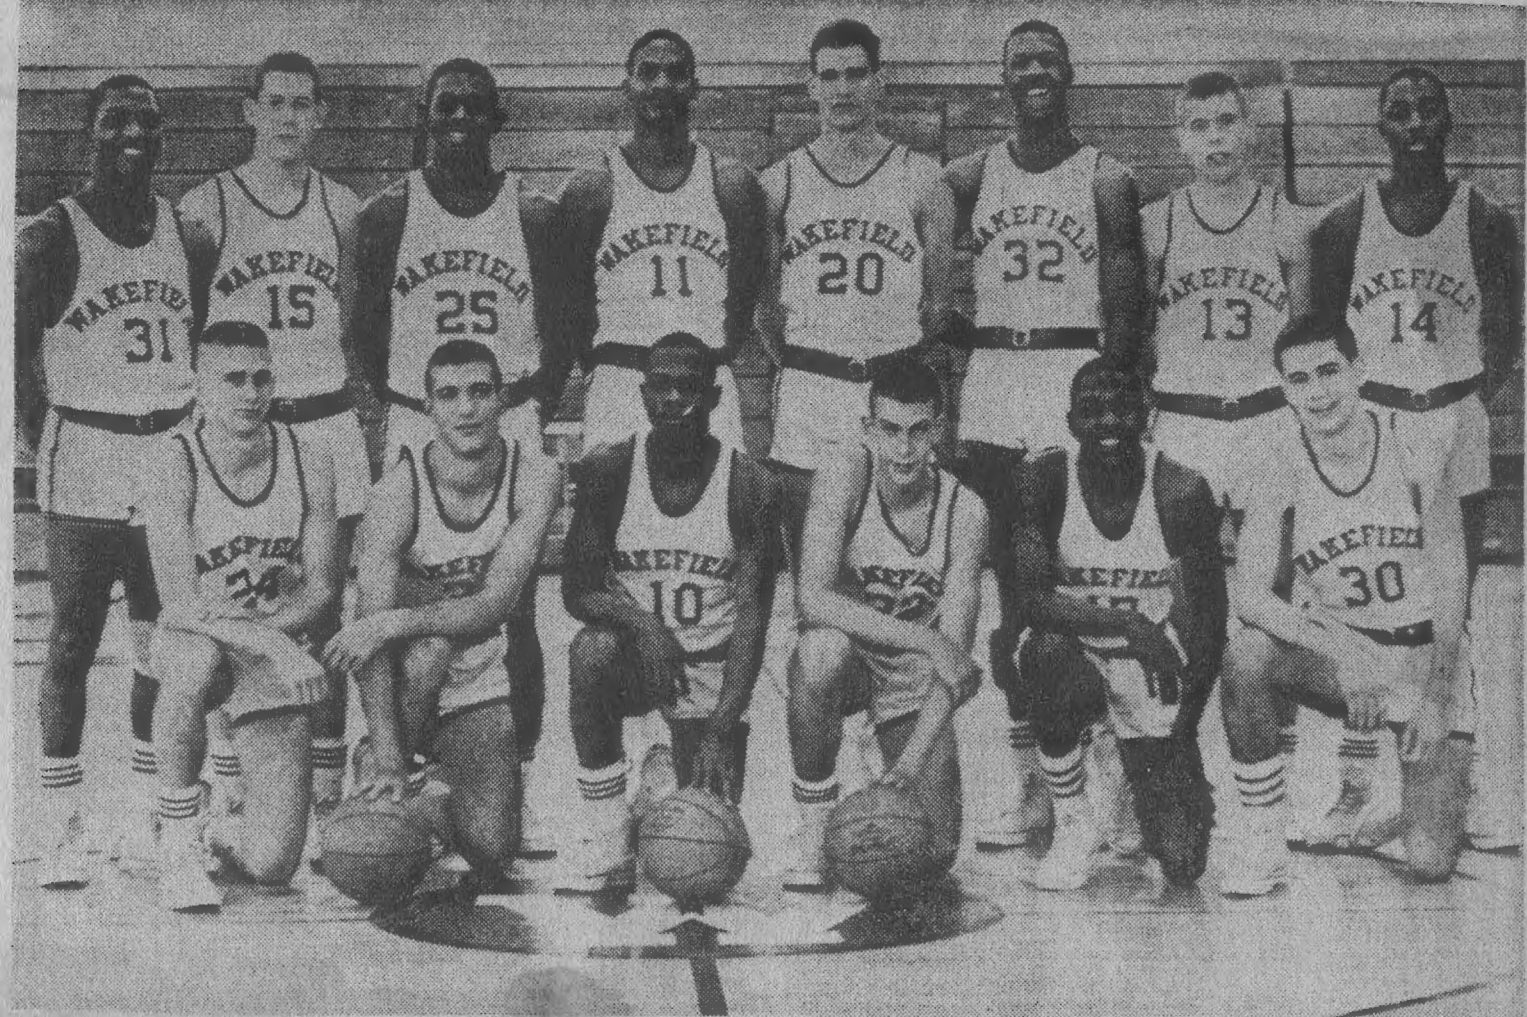

The 6-2 youngster is in the College of Arts and Sciences at the University. He did not receive a basketball grant-in-aid. Cavalier Coach Bill Gibson rates Crackel an excellent chance to become a varsity starter next year.

Northern Virginia Stock Plunges

By CARL SELL
Star Staff Writer

RICHMOND — Northern Virginia's recent rise in Group 1-A scholastic basketball has received a severe setback as the Virginia state tournament continues tonight with only teams from the Eastern, Central and Western Districts remaining in the semifinal round.

George Washington of Alexandria and Wakefield of Arlington, the top two teams in the Northern District this season, were rudely bounced in last night's opening round at the Richmond Arena.

Richard McCarty pushed an errant shot back in with one second to play to give Woodrow Wilson of Portsmouth a 51-49 triumph over Alexandria. Wakefield folded in the second half to lose to George Washington of Danville, 47-33.

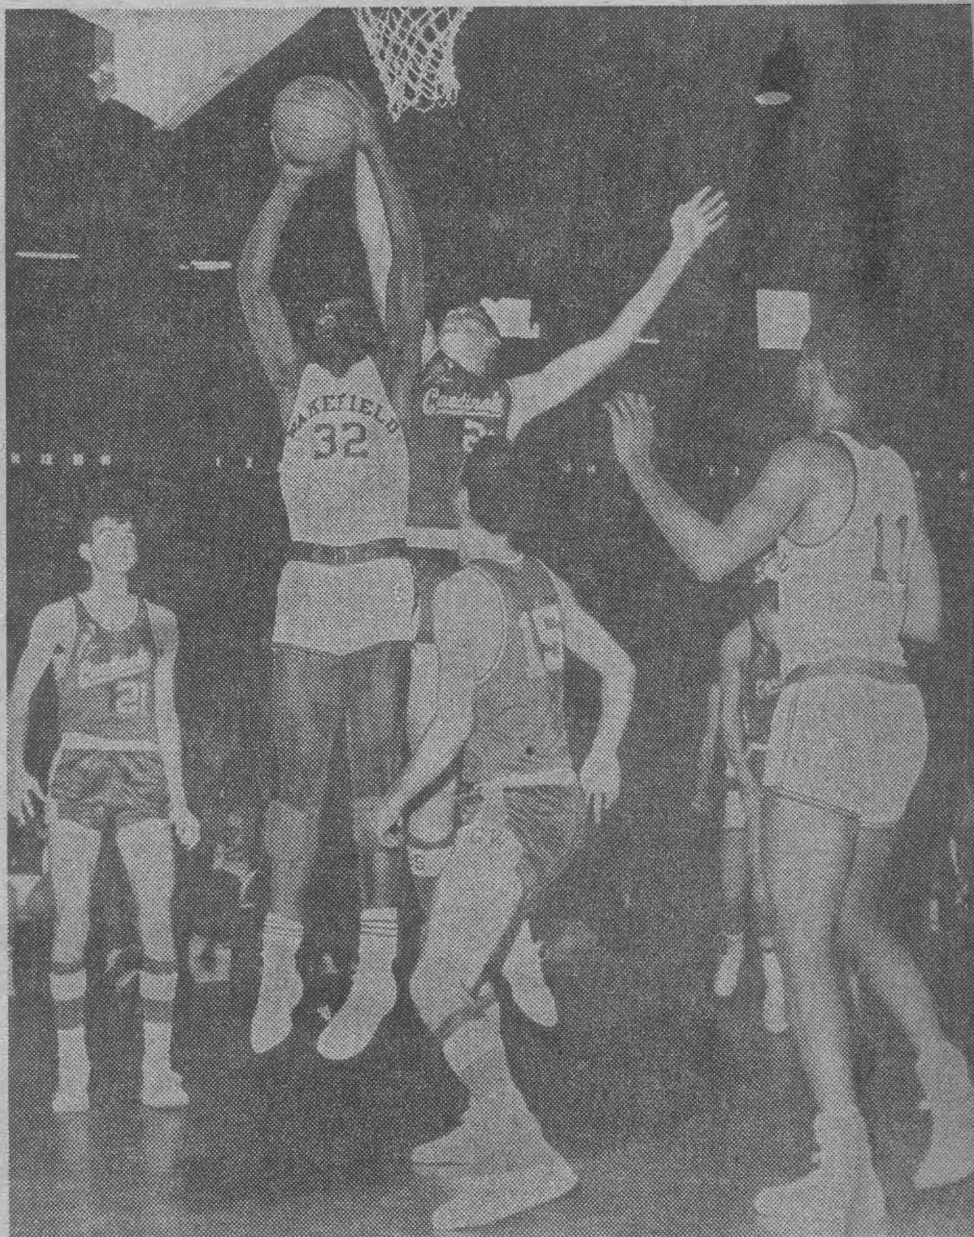

Manchester, Maury Win

In other first-round games unbeaten Manchester of Richmond blitzed Patrick Henry of Roanoke, 90-70, and Maury dumped George Wythe, also of Richmond, 72-60.

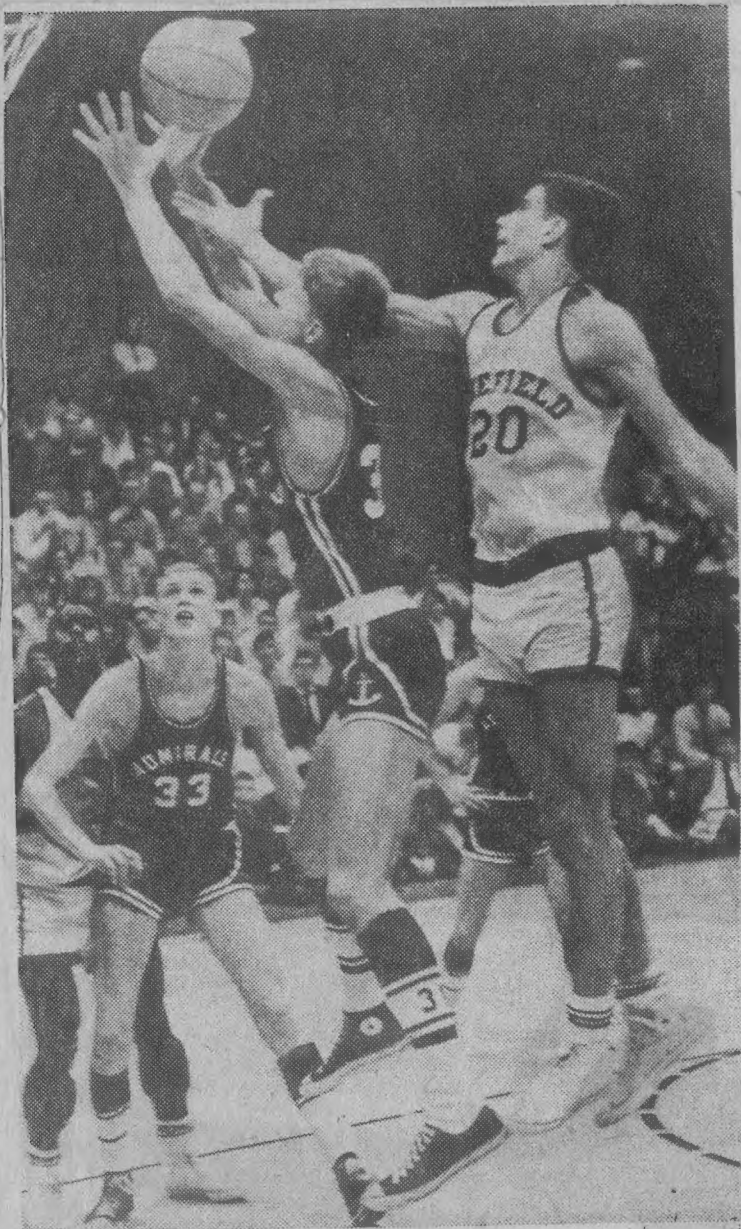

Danville, from the Western District, plays Maury at 7:15 and Manchester of the Central district meets Portsmouth in tonight's semifinal games. Maury and Portsmouth are both from the 20-team Eastern District.

The double defeat was also a jolt to the Northern teams' conviction that a good defense can beat a good offense. Wakefield and GW had the defense, but not enough offense to make it pay.

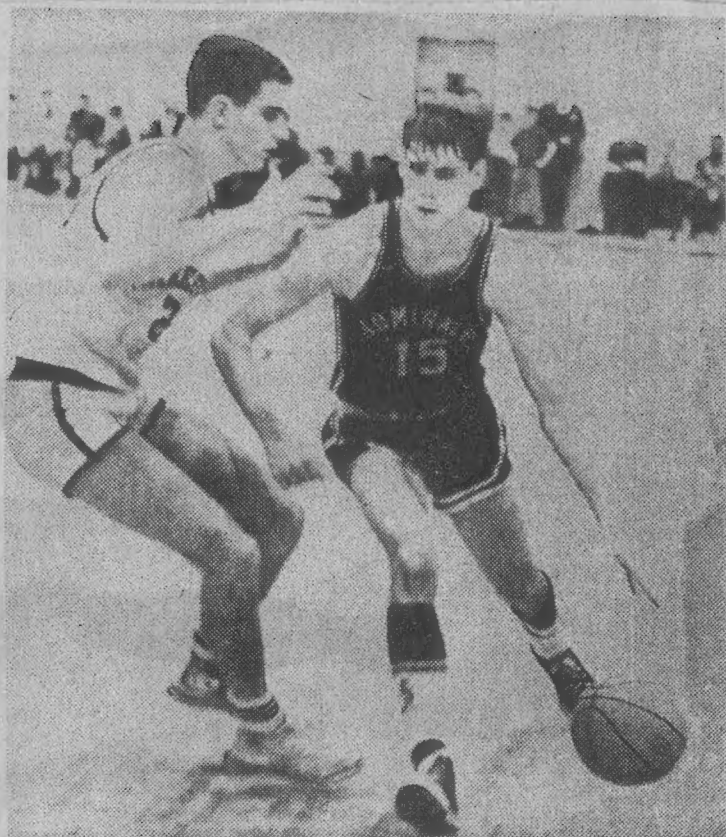

In the last five years, the Northern district has produced three state champions and had a team in the semifinals of the other two tournaments. Previously, GW was the only Northern team ever to win a state title, turning the trick on 1945. Wakefield won the state title in 1961 and Washington-Lee won in both 1962 and 1963.

Wakefield Overcomes 10-Point Admiral Lead

By CHARLIE BYRD
SUN Staff Writer

Wakefield High School battled back from a 10 point second period deficit to sneak past the Hammond Admirals 45-44 in the semi-final round of the Group 1-A Northern District Basketball Tournament before a screaming, handkerchief wringing crowd that jammed into the George Washington gymnasium last night.

The Warriors and the Presidents play for the championship tonight at Washington-Lee. Regardless of the outcome, both will represent the Northern District at the State tournament in Richmond starting Thursday.

Wakefield thus atoned for their only defeat of the season which came at the hands of the Admirals 52-51 in an early season affair at Hammond.

There was little to choose between the two teams. The Admirals had a height advantage and they exploited it in the first half as they controlled the boards as if they owned them. But, in the second half the Warriors adjusted their position and defense so that they ended the game with only one less rebound than the Tars.

In the matter of shooting, the Sailors sank 19 from the floor while the Warriors had to be content with only 12.

So the difference had to be from the foul line and in that department the Warriors had the best of it. They went to the line 32 times to the Admirals 10 and converted 21 while the Tars hit six.

If the fouls helped Wakefield offensively, they also hurt Hammond another way. Ronnie Rust went out with 7:45 remaining in the fourth period and he was followed seconds later by Art Laib. Even so, the Tars actually overtook the Warriors when, with 1:55 remaining, they moved ahead 42-41. But they couldn't hold it.

Wakefield's man for man defense had Bob Roop on Billy Hawkins and he did a fine job on the Admirals outside shooter. So much so in fact that Hawkins had only one field goal in the game in the second period and he sat out most of the third and Tony Duehring also played a fine defensive game as did Clayton Powell who had the tough assignment of guarding Ronnie Rust. Rust has as many moves toward the basket as just about any player in the District but he wasn't able to get past the equally quick Powell, and so, like Hawkins, he got one basket.

Ron Clevenger, often shooting from behind Mike Lych's screen, bucketed 15 points to take scoring honors for the night and Lynch, the playmaker, came in with 10, all from the outside.

The Warrior defense was particularly stingy in the third period when it allowed the Admirals only four points. Marvin Jordan ball hawked all during the period and got more than his share of the rebounds. Harvey Crittendon was also under the basket and started to take the ball away from the taller Tars in the same frame.

Offensively, the Warriors were led by Bob Roop who hit 13. Big Harvey bucketed 12 and Jordan and Powell chipped in with eight apiece.

Warriors Tie For Lead With 4th Win in Row

By JIM CAWOOD
Star Special Writer

Lack of both height and experience playing together has not kept Wakefield High School's basketball team from a first-place tie in the Northern Virginia Group 1-A League.

The unbeaten Warriors won their fourth game, upending Woodson, 51-42, at Wakefield last night. They now share the lead with Washington-Lee, George Washington and Hammond as league play stops for the holidays.

Similar to Wakefield's football team, which won the Northern Virginia championship after a slow start, the Warriors are a mixture of last year's Wakefield and Hoffman-Boston players. They're new to each other, and the ball gets thrown away a lot, but the potential is there.

Height Is Problem

Height is the real problem. Only 6-foot-3 Harvey Crittenden tops 6-1, and five of the top eight players are less than 6 foot.

The Warriors had little trouble outrebounding Woodson, but against a giant-sized team such as Washington-Lee, they could have a real problem. Woodson averages 6-3.

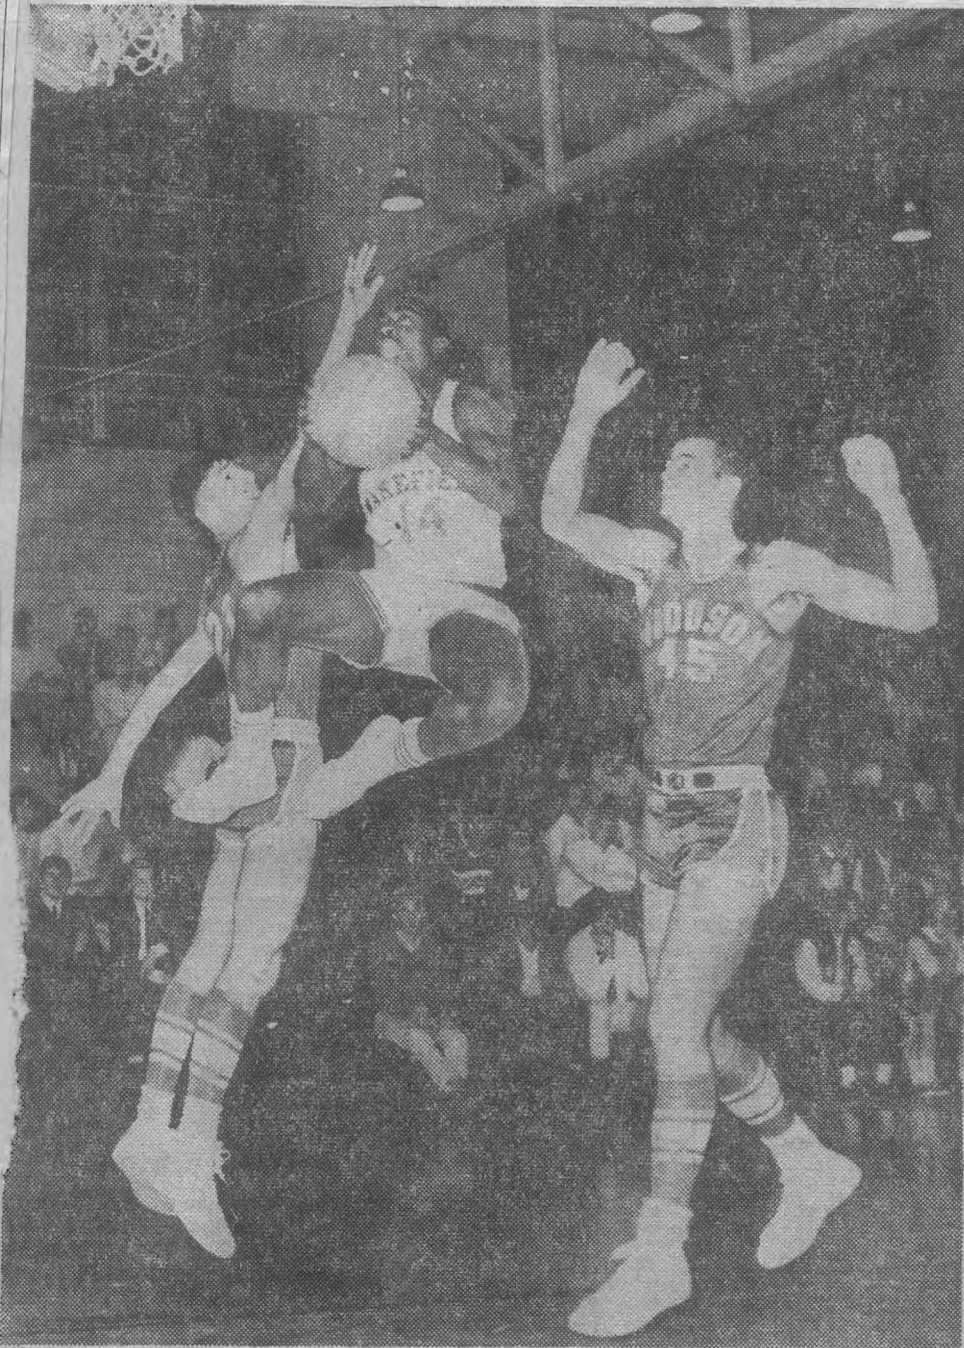

Depth, the Warriors' strong suit, made the difference last night. Six Warriors scored between seven and 11 points to balance the 22 points of Gabe Oliverio, the Cavaliers' fine shooter.

Last-Quarter Surge

Wakefield, which never trailed after the middle of the second quarter, gradually pulled away on the shooting of Marvin Jordan, Crittenden and Clayton Powell.

The 5-foot-11 Jordan, who led the Warriors with 11 points, scored six in the last-quarter surge, and grabbed eight rebounds in the second half.

Wakefield Batters Statesmen

Crittendon Sets Pace In First Warrior Win

By BOB HORNER
SUN Staff Writer

The patient Wakefield Warriors chalked up their initial win of the season, having failed in two previous attempts, as they followed Harvey Crittendon's rebounding and scoring to a 56-42 pasting of the Marshall Statesmen on the winners' home court last night.

Crittendon scored 19 points to lead both teams, all the Warriors completely dominated the Potomac District game. The tall senior collected 10 in the first quarter to pace the opening Wakefield onslaught, as the Warriors built up a 20-10 advantage.

The winners used their height to control rebounding throughout the game, despite the efforts of an eager but outclassed Statesmen squad. Several times Crittendon and his mate, Joe Smackum, put on an unintentional exhibition of missed shots and ensuing spectacular rebounds that was particularly frustrating to the smaller Statesmen, who could only watch as the ball passed over their heads between the Warrior's two tall forwards.

Wakefield alternated between a pressing defense and a relaxed, but tight alignment, both proving effective, as the Warriors bottled up the Statesmen the majority of the time. There were, however, brief lapses that a quicker or taller team could have used to sink Wakefield.

Roger Sollenberger, Marshall's stocky guard, had some success on his way through the Warrior defense, set-up, hitting for 10 of his 12 points on dangerous underhand shots that proved that at least one statesmen's hand was quicker than the Wakefield eye could follow.

Otherwise unable to crack the opposing defense, Marshall attempted a fast break routine in the first period, but interceptions by guards Larry Funkhouser and Lucky Gant snuffed out hopes of any quick baskets.

Joe Smackum turned in his best game thus far in the victory. A 6 ft. senior, shot and rebounded like he was three inches taller, and along with Crittendon, they formed a combination that Marshall couldn't hold.

After moving to a 20-10 lead, Wakefield slowed the game down somewhat and shot more accurately to take a 32-21 lead into the dressing room at halftime. Crittendon hit only one field goal, but Gant and Smackum picked up for him and paced Wakefield in the second period.

The Warriors proved somewhat vulnerable to Ron Smith's quick jumper, as he tallied four field goals in the first half to collect eight points, his final total.

The third quarter moved slowly for both teams, a development which of course favored Wakefield, as the Warriors resisted the feeble Marshall attempts to move the game to a catch-up pace.

W-L Romp To Easy Opening Win

Warriors' Hopes Die In 2 Point 2nd Period

By JACK CURRIE
SUN Sports Editor

Trailing by two points early in the second quarter, the Washington-Lee Little Generals poured through 16 straight points while holding Wakefield's Warriors scoreless for the rest of period, and coasted to a 58-45 win last night at W-L.

The abrupt change of pace by Morris Levin's charges, erased a 14-12 lead the Warriors had compiled at the end of the first quarter, and except for the first period score, and in the later stages of the final minutes when the Generals were scampering in and out of the game like pack rats, the Wakefield squad played a cold turkey type of game.

John Hummer, W-L's 6-7 can- didate for state honors, paced the Potomac District victory by pumping through a rough 10 points the first half of the game, and then added 11 more on a smoother basis the final two quarters.

The Little Generals hit 21 of 50 shots at the basket for an evening's 42 per cent. Hummer did better than the team's average, hitting eight of 14 attempts. Jim Spriggs, second high man for W-L with 12 points, found the mark six times in his 14 aimings. Wakefield's Harvey Crittendon found second place in the high scoring ranks for the evening, with 18.

Hummer played as well a defensive game as offense, picking off nine of his 10 rebounds for the evening on defense. Spriggs and Tom Dunlop, who bucketed nine points, gathered in five balls off the boards.

Both squads played typical first night games, finding it hard at times to hang onto the ball with any consistency. The Warriors attempted a man to man defense, that worked well at times, but did not prove effective because of lack of height. The Warriors pulled down 23 rebounds, six short of W-L's efforts. W-L came up with a solid amy was the outside jump shot zone defense, whose worst enemy did the major part of Wakefield's scoring.

The Little Generals jumped out to an early 7-1 lead, with Hummer and Spriggs combining for the points. Hummer hit with short jumps, while Spriggs relied on a feed from big John for his contribution. The warriors with Joe Smackum showing the way, then fired through seven in a row to make the game interesting. Smackum hit on a jump shot in the final seconds of the quarter to give the Warriors its quarter lead.

Both teams exchanged shots in the opening part of the second period, but then Dunlop, Hummer, Clay Kirby and Don Clements began showing a little form. Dunlop pulled down several key rebounds, and the Warriors kept throwing the ball away, or missing the target. Once the W-L mob began the trek through the hoop with regular consistency, the Warriors may have well adopted "Goodby Charlie" as the school song.

After W-L had placed the glass lid over Wakefield's basket, and machine gunned its 16 points in the second period, the game lost all suspense, and you just wondered how big the Little Generals would win by. Levin substituted freely after the splurge, but the fans began to get a little edgy as the Warriors began tomping back from their furthest distance of 22 points in the third quarter when the score was 20-40, to a distance of ten points, 52-42, with a little more than two and a half minutes to play. Spriggs quickly upped the score to 12 again when fed the ball on a down court race, and sailed with a lay-up with space to spare.

Crittendon, for the Warriors, matched Hummer in playing an above average game. He scored six of Wakefield's 14 points in the first quarter, blocked several shots, stole the ball once, and generally played a give and take brand of ball. Apparently W-L got wise to his goings on, as Crittendon found himself contained during the second quarter, along with the rest of his team. He returned to bounce in seven more in the third quarter, but by then the Warriors were out of picture.
